Description

Distillerie Grand Dérangement offers unique and authentic spirits. It is known for producing Québec's first certified organic gin, made from grain to bottle, with the help of its market garden production located less than 10 kilometres away from the distillery. The distillery is located in Saint-Jacques, the home of Acadians who were deported in 1755 during the Great Upheaval. The distillery has chosen to highlight this slice of history through its name and the names it has given to its spirits, as well as through the original architecture of its buildings, which reminds us of this Acadian presence. During your visit, you will learn about the Acadians' contribution to the region's settlement and the nod to the former glory of the La Melchers distillery in Berthierville. On-site, you will meet passionate and determined artisans, discover all the facets of artisan distillation processes, and admire the magnificent still, an essential tool in manufacturing spirits. Whether you're into cocktails, gin, vodka on the rocks or just curious, you will surely have a great time. Whether you're a cocktail lover or just curious about gin or vodka, you're guaranteed to have a great time.
